CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

The Valley Guide 2026

TRANSCO™

A MARMON RAIL COMPANY

The Sayre Shop opened in 1977 and has been repairing railcars ever since. We have built a strong future for our business and provide longstanding careers for our employees. We are proud to support our community and the surrounding areas.

UNITED WAY Bradford County

Our employees proudly support the UWBC by volunteering at local non-profit organizations throughout the year. One Community. One Mission.

As we step into 2026, our business community stands stronger than ever — connected by innovation, collaboration, and a shared commitment to growth. This Member Guide serves as your roadmap to the many resources, opportunities, and partnerships available through the Chamber of Commerce.

We aim to help your business thrive in an ever-changing marketplace. More importantly, we want you to discover the people and organizations that make our chamber and community special — leaders, entrepreneurs, and innovators who continue to drive progress and prosperity across our region.

Whether you're a new member joining us for the first time or a long-standing partner, we invite you to engage fully: attend events, connect with other members, and take advantage of the tools the Chamber provides to amplify your success. Together, we are shaping a brighter economic future — one relationship, one idea, and one opportunity at a time. And as the Junior Chamber of Commerce Class of 2025-2026 says, "Together, we light the way"

Welcome to 2026 — a year of growth, connection, and possibility.

~ Jan Lee

VALLEY MAP

Athens Borough & Township

Athens has had many names throughout the recorded history of this geographical area. Before white settlers arrived in the Tioga Point area, The Haudenosaunee held the southern gateway to the Iroquois nations. Diahoga was the name known during the precolonial area and the Revolutionary War periods. In 1778 John Secord was the first white settler, and in the following year General John Sullivan would make Tioga Point his base of operations for the campaign against the local Indigenous peoples. With settlers from Connecticut returning after the Revolutionary War, their descendants helped develop a thriving community, growing the canals, railroad, and bridge work industries creating a flourishing service community continuing into the modern era. Athens Township officially received its charter and was formed in 1797. Athens Borough was incorporated in 1831. For more information about the history of Tioga Point and Athens, visit the Tioga Point Museum at 724 S. Main Street in Athens, PA.

ATHENS BOROUGH & TOWNSHIP

Sayre Borough

Sayre was envisioned in 1869 by Howard Elmer, a Waverly, New York bank president who recognized the potential of the plains between Athens and Waverly for a new community. Along with business partners, Elmer purchased large tracts of inexpensive farmland and laid out streets, including Keystone Avenue. He soon shifted plans to align the town's location with the junction of key railroads, anticipating major growth tied to rail expansion.

That growth came when the Lehigh Valley Railroad, led by Asa Packer, selected the site for railroad shops and facilities, sparking rapid development beginning in the early 1870s. The town was named after Robert H. Sayre, a prominent railroad executive. Following years of expansion driven by the railroad industry, residents petitioned for incorporation, and Sayre was officially established as a borough on January 27, 1891.

South Waverly Borough

Settlement in South Waverly began as early as 1786, shortly after the Revolutionary War, with the New York–Pennsylvania state line established as its southern boundary. Early settlers, including John Swift, developed the area along present-day Elmira Street, with growth extending south from Waverly, New York. South Waverly was incorporated as a borough on January 28, 1878, emerging from an area once known as “Factoryville” due to mills along Cayuta Creek, and has maintained close ties with neighboring Waverly ever since.

Rail service arrived in 1878, followed by trolley and bus lines, making transportation and industry central to the borough's development. The John H. Murray Coal Company, established in 1890 and still operating today, became a key part of South Waverly's history. Today, the borough has evolved into a residential community within the Valley region, with continued business and industrial development along its eastern border.

SAYRE & SOUTH WAVERLY BOROUGHES

Village of Waverly

Waverly is the largest village in Tioga County, New York and was previously a regular stop on the Black Diamond Express passenger service. This territory was first inhabited by Native Americans who used its strategic location, the merging of two rivers, for travel and trade. The village was incorporated as part of the town of Barton officially in 1854 when Joseph Hallett named the town after the novel Waverley by Sir Walter Scott. In the 19th century Waverly had been an important railroad junction when the development of the Lehigh Valley Railroad reached the area in 1869. The development of the railroad and coal railroads significantly contributed to the flourishing of Waverly, included in this was also the development of several factories throughout the village such as Hall-Lyons furniture factory and the Manoil Manufacturing Co. According to the 2010 census, Waverly has a population of approximately 4,444, which contributes to the regions combined population of 30,000.

Town of Barton

The Town of Barton was formed on March 23, 1824, and is located in the southwestern corner of Tioga County between the Susquehanna and Chemung Rivers, bordering Pennsylvania. Incorporated in 1854, the town includes the Village of Waverly, the hamlets of Barton and Lockwood, and part of Halsey Valley. Early settlers came mainly from New York, Connecticut, and Pennsylvania, with John Shepard among the most prominent after purchasing land in 1796 that later became Waverly. Barton developed through agriculture, mills, and manufacturing, while strong community life emerged through institutions such as the North Barton Grange, founded in 1874, and the Barton Community Club, established in 1946.

TINY HOME VILLAGE

The Future of Sheltering

Animal Care Sanctuary is building the future- marrying innovation with sustainability to produce the very best outcomes for animals. We are on the cutting edge of the future of sheltering.

No longer will our dogs be spending day after day in a concrete kennel with chain link as their view- loud echoey ceilings- dog to left and right of you- uproarious barking throughout each day- relentless agitation and arousal which leads to kennel stress. Kennel stress can lead to dogs developing behavior challenges which in turn can lead to longer stays in the shelter backing up the entire shelter system.

Giving the dogs access to their very own yard allows them to get the sun, rain, snow and wind whenever they desire. They can feel the grass under their paws anytime they want to! Tiny Homes offer autonomy and allow the dogs to make decisions based on their desires.

These heated and air-conditioned homes allow our dogs to prepare for their forever home while they stay with us. Come be part of the future of sheltering!

Together we can...
